

Case Study

Arthur Robinson

Arthur is 22 years old and over the past three years he has been provided with an ASDAN education package to support him to achieve accreditation in the home environment.

The ASDAN Personal Development Programme was implemented to provide Arthur with purpose and structure to his week with stimulating functional activities, as well as opportunities to gain relevant accreditations.

Arthur enjoys lots of practical activities and is also very musical, playing guitar in a band who perform in the UK and abroad. This provides opportunities to use his achievements with his music to gain ASDAN accreditation, alongside functional tasks in the community, life skills, and specific learning tasks.

Arthur has gained so much from the ASDAN programme. His greatest achievement has been spending a week in Ibiza playing his music, which took a huge amount of planning and organising beforehand. Arthur was heavily involved in creating playlists, practising his set, organising the equipment and resources to take, planning his accommodation and managing his money.

This has provided Arthur with confidence and independence, boosting his self-esteem and self-worth.

There is so much more that Arthur has been involved in; he has accessed Swarthmore Education Centre and been involved in work placements and music sessions as well as in maths and English.

Over the past three years Arthur has been determined and committed to achieving his Bronze, Silver, and Gold ASDAN awards. Arthur is now working on AQA Unit Awards tailored to his current interests and needs at an appropriate level.

It has been a pleasure to work alongside Arthur and his care team to observe his achievements, and I am confident Arthur will continue to thrive.
